

School Fundraising Made Easy

Simple fundraising program for schools

Collect newspapers for recycling

Big rewards for little effort

What is the Program?

Money Tree - Recycling with Rewards is a simple and easy way to mobilise teachers, students and parents and involve them in a sustainable and year-round fundraising activity.

You simply ask students to bring used newspapers to school for collection.

Newspapers will be collected, recycled and reused in spill kits, kitty litter, cereal boxes, egg cartons and pencil barrels to name just a few examples.

The more newspapers collected, the higher your school's rebate for use on special projects of your choosing.

How Does it Work?

Money Tree - Recycling with Rewards is a hassle-free fundraising program that delivers results with little effort. We provide you with everything you need.

By signing a service agreement, Transpacific will provide you with recycling bins and will collect the newspapers free of charge. No cash outlay is required.

Your school's benefits will be paid via cheque or electronic funds transfer and can help you achieve any number of special projects. You decide how to spend the money raised.

We will provide your school with materials to help promote the program, such as posters, flyers and content for newsletters.

Every child in your school will be provided with a free environmentally friendly fabric tote bag to encourage their participation and make collection easy.

Program Logistics

We will provide you with as many 240 litre wheelie bins as you need. Additional bins can be requested and supplied at any time free of charge - just let us know.

Collections take place weekly with the number of bins being serviced recorded at that time.

79 million copies of The Advertiser and Sunday Mail are published and distributed to South Australian households each year.

How many can your school collect to raise money?

Think Outside the Box

While students, parents and teachers can bring newspapers from home, there are a number of other ways to help increase your collections.

Some examples include approaching your local public library, real estate office, newsagents, local businesses and work places of parents. You are only limited by your imagination.

More Than a Fundraising Program

Although raising funds is central to the program, we want to do more.

Transpacific has recovery, recycling and reuse at the heart of our corporate philosophy. That's why it's our intent to leave a lasting legacy through the program.

We are keen to give our children a functional understanding of recycling, its importance, and the role it can play in helping to save our limited resources.

Transpacific will gladly work with you and your teachers to support recycling initiatives within your school.

We are only too happy to provide your teachers with information, school visits by qualified education officers, or the opportunity to take students to a local recycling facility, offering a valuable behind-the-scenes look at what happens after recycling material has been collected.
